

Research Report 2019

Preface

The research report 2019 of Karlshochschule International University covers its research activities in the calendar year 2019.

During the reporting period the Karlshochschule was able to maintain with its activities its research position in the scientific community. This is a noteworthy achievement taking into consideration that the budget for research corresponds to that of a small university. The research output was possible as the professors were highly engaged in conducting their research. However, it must also be emphasized that the professors received best possible support from the Karlshochschule and its staff in 2019.

Not only for teaching but also for research, 2019 was a year of transition which will continue in the upcoming years. The new orientation of the Karlshochschule towards social and political topics, which is seen in the Bachelor programs IR and PPE and the new Master program in L-PPE as well as service learning, will shape in addition to the “rethinking management” orientation the research profile of the Karlshochschule in the near future.
